

Think In Terms Of Happiness, Mayor Tells Business Men

Says Health and Education Facilities Chief Needs

A plea to give the idealists an inning, both in making peace in the world and in building this town of Newmarket, was made by Mayor Dr. L. W. Dales at a small meeting of the Newmarket Business Men's Association on Tuesday evening.

President R. C. Morrison said that one of the chief purposes of the association is "to build the town and make it a better place to live."

Mr. Morrison spoke of the great industries which have been built up in the town, and the town builders who have given their best in Newmarket. "We are just coming in, and the ball is rolling fast," said Mr. Morrison. "We have had some wonderful men in this town. The Canes put Newmarket on the map in many ways."

"The Office Specialty came, the Davises came, and their industries grew. In our time the Dixon Pencil Co. came. Then we have had men like J. O. Little, P. W. Pearson, Joseph McCulley and the man who gave us York County hospital—Dr. L. W. Dales."

"It is a splendid thing to get together like this to see what you can do for the town that you will be remembered for," said Dr. Dales. "Life is fleeting. The greatest ambition a person can have is to leave something permanent, something lasting behind him."

"I hope that this association will carry on. Big oaks from little acorns grow."

Saying that "we must work out a better social security for our people," Dr. Dales said: "Your responsibility seems to me to be to try to bring about the things that will bring more satisfaction out of living in this town, more happiness, more security."

"You will say that you are not town officials, that you have no legal power to impose your ideas on people. Probably it is better that way, for people resent having ideas imposed on them."

"The practical man is the man who never spends a dollar unless he can see ten percent return. We have had such men in our council and as a result we are in a good financial position."

"But we have practical men at the helm in Canada and Europe, and these practical men are responsible for this war. Let us give the idealists their innings. We should not be thinking entirely in terms of dollars and cents, but of happiness, contentment, health, education. We want men who dream dreams. There is a happy medium."

"I am sorry to see in the press so much criticism of idealists, of educated men, men who have been called socialists, men who want better things."

"Don't be too practical in your discussions," Dr. Dales told the business men. "You can send your ideas and suggestions to the town council. Talk in terms of better health facilities, better education facilities, and gradually water wears away a stone."

"Education should be free in this town. Books should be free. The government should provide the money from equalized taxation. Newmarket people should see their children enjoying the advantage of university education."

"We should have a system of both technical and academic education in Newmarket."

"Health is another thing whose importance you should try to impress on the council. Give the doctors hospital facilities. Take the burden of sickness off families."

"I hope that we never have the tragedy of relief again. I would almost prefer a revolution."

Newmarket needs many things. Newmarket needs a real town hall, where all offices of the town might be located, a hall which would include a library and an auditorium and a place for such meetings as this.

"Transportation is going to be speeded up. The time will come when we will have to widen Main St."

"We need a public health nurse. We need a sewage disposal plant. We need municipal garbage collection. We need more money spent in our schools. We need technical education facilities. And these things can be accomplished if the idealists and the practical men get together."

Expressing thanks to Dr. Dales, Vice-President H. J. Luck said that the mayor's ideas found him in complete agreement.

Andrew Hebb, editor of The Era and Express, who was invited by Mr. Morrison to make a few remarks, expressed the opinion that if "we on Main St. want progress we must be 100 percent for progress. We must be in favor of not only the things that seem to benefit Main St. but also the things, such as Dr. Dales has mentioned, that benefit the man with a family living on a back street."

"When members of our town council suggest progressive steps they should know that, whatever opposition they may find, at least the Main St. will be 100 percent behind them."

The next meeting will take place on Tuesday, Sept. 28.

PAT VERNON BOXING SHOW IS KNOCK-OUT

The army put on a bang-bang bang-up boxing show in Newmarket arena on Thursday night. The boys were from Exhibition camp, Toronto.

Promoter J. L. Spillette and the Newmarket Veterans Association were responsible for arranging the evening. Pat Vernon, a veteran and one of the town's true blue sportsmen, whose health has been poor, was the sole beneficiary.

Frankie Bricker, Brantford, former Canadian welterweight champion, scored a five-round victory over Johnnie Britt, Hamilton, in the feature bout.

Jack O'Halloran, a Newmarket boy, had the crowd cheering when he scored a nine-count over one of his fellow soldiers in the second round of a three-round bout.

Jimmie Siegal, with a longer reach than his opponent, knocked out Walt Osman of North Bay in the featherweight class. Alex. Eves was announcer, and No. 23 training camp provided other officials.

Ticket sales brought $227, gifts $274, expenses were $61, and balance going to Pat Vernon was $440.

"We want to sincerely thank all who helped with the Pat Vernon benefit fund and made this effort a success," Mr. Spillette said on behalf of himself and the Veterans.

Contributions not previously acknowledged were made by Ross Caradonna, Ray Jelley, Loblaws, Norman Rogers, W. O. McIntyre, James S. Law, "A Friend," and "Anonymous."

Mr. Spillette himself paid for the advertising and the Citizens' band.

JANUARY PARCEL ARRIVES IN MIDDLE OF SOFTBALL SEASON

Deputy-Reeve and Mrs. Arthur Evans have received another letter from their son, Fred, a prisoner of war in Germany, dated July 4. He joyfully states that the January next-of-kin box turned up after all.

Here is what he said: "Received the January parcel last week. They both arrived nearly together. Many thanks indeed! The only thing they took out was the tie—too bad—everything in good shape, and deeply appreciated, especially the food-stuffs. Send more eats if anything. Got smokes, too, from Mrs. Belugin, Chas., Jr. and Uncle Joe Edwards—please thank them all very much."

"It will likely be a long time now before any more Canadian mail arrives. Hope I score more cigs. before this lot is exhausted. Boy, the coffee, tea, and sugar are really being enjoyed."

"The weather has been fair but not very warm for this time of year. Softball has taken the camp by storm—they have forgotten all the other sports nearly—the only thing discouraging is the lack of equipment."

"I'm in good health and trust you all are well too. No Canadian letters at all lately. Best wishes to all and keep smiling."

"Merchants today are semi-civil servants, assisting the government in carrying out the war-time prices and trade board orders and educating the public along these lines."

"Every merchant should get behind the Business Men's Association and assist each other in working out their changing problems, for their own benefit and the advantage of the whole community."

"Good government can only come by understanding and understanding through each locality studying and presenting its local viewpoint from a collective point of view. None of us will serve effectively if we take a lone trail."

Bonanza Prices Marred By Help Shortage On Marsh

ONIONS BRING THREE TIMES LAST YEAR'S PRICE, CROP GOOD

Help is urgently needed on the Holland marsh by growers of potatoes, celery and carrots.

With high school opening on Monday, most of the boys and girls will be leaving the farm service force camp today and tomorrow, and Queen's Park officials are making an effort to find replacements.

The growers have just harvested a splendid crop of onions, bringing $2.15 a 50-lb bag compared with 60 cents to $1 last year (and one dip to 40 cents). Carrots are also paying dividends this year at $1 a bushel compared with 40 cents last year.

Potatoes are good but not a heavy crop and are bringing $1.35 for a 75-lb bag compared with $1 to $1.25 last year.

Growers who protected their crops against "late blight" by frequent dusting or spraying are reporting high yields, a few reporting as high as a yield as 400 bushels to the acre.

Many growers, however, have had a heavy reduction in yield as a result of blight, which seemed to hit overnight. Agricultural Representative W. M. Cockburn said.

The potatoes are nice and clean and a good crop but many growers have suffered a heavy loss in yield as a result of the late blight shortening the growth period, said Mr. Cockburn.

FOLLOWS BASEBALL FROM ACROSS OCEAN

"Many thanks for the 300 torches sent which I received very gladly today," writes Sgt. Don Lyall in a letter to the Newmarket Veterans' association in appreciation for cigarettes sent. "Over here things are the same and one day soon we hope to join our comrades in Sicily and the way the war looks it won't last too long now."

"Well, Vets, thanks again for the tags and all the best to you and all for your regular supply received monthly."

"Just a line to thank you for the cigarettes which I can say come in pretty handy these days," writes Sgt. Ted Robinson. "You fellows are doing your job and hope you will soon be able to finish it. I know that myself and all the rest of the boys sure appreciate what you are doing."

"I see by the town paper that baseball is in full swing again. Would like to see a game or two. Will follow it in the paper. Again I wish to thank you for cigarettes and will you pass my thanks on to all those who make these parcels possible."

Cards were also received from Pte. John Caradonna and Pte. Wilson Newton thanking the veterans for cigarettes sent to them.

CHARTERED BANKS POINT THE WAY

There are many of us who foresee difficulties in reconciling democratic liberties with the increasing government control over business which, to most of us, seems necessary. It would be much better if it were possible to make some magic changes in our present methods of doing business that would make government interference unnecessary. Most people would welcome a formula that would taxid our competitive system against depressions, unemployment, and poverty side by side with wealth.

Some time ago we read a study prepared for or by Lever Bros. that did set out some interesting suggestions for a minimum of government interference and a maximum of private business. Such a suggestion as collecting a tax surplus in good times for expenditure in bad times is sound, but it is an idea that governments cannot adopt without public understanding.

Thinking business men will take up such moderate ideas and give them their support. Another idea which we believe was emphasized in the Lever Bros. study was the use of the banking system to contract credit when business begins to boom and to expand credit when it begins to fail. That again is a device which requires public understanding, understanding that the government of the day might be making conditions just a little less prosperous than they could be, and yet should not be voted against on that score.

We were interested to read the advertisement, published in this and other newspapers last week by the Chartered Banks of Canada, headed: "Quantity of money and volume of credit are matters of high national monetary policy." The advertisement explained that the chartered banks accept deposits and make short-term loans, "but the quantity of money in existence in the country at any given time, and the volume of credit, are matters of high national monetary policy. The nation's own central bank, the Bank of Canada, determines them. The Bank of Canada makes extensive use of the chartered banks' facilities in giving effect to these policies."

The chartered banks might seek to discredit the central publicly-owned bank, but instead they accept progress and help the central bank to be a success by educating the public about the function of a central bank. At the same time they make the people realize that they, the chartered banks, do not control the volume of money, that they are not to blame if there is not enough money (or too much) in the country, and, if anyone is thinking of having the country take over the chartered banks, that they must be taken over for other purposes than controlling the quantity of money in the country.

Here is a contribution by our banks toward making our system work with a minimum of change—and if it can be made to work reasonably satisfactorily it will not be changed. Unfortunately, however, for the cause of a moderate solution of our economic problem there are those, on the one hand, who would destroy the institutions that we have instead of going along step by step toward the ultimate ideal of a "kingdom of heaven on earth" and, on the other hand, there are those who would have no more control over business than before this war. Such people sometimes talk of what they call "free enterprise" and they seek to identify it with political democracy.

"EVERYBODY RUNS HIS OWN SHOW"

Walter P. Zeller, Montreal business man, who spoke at the recent Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association convention, defined "free enterprise" thus: "It means a society where, within the limits of the laws and regulations enacted in the general welfare, each individual is free to plan and conduct his own affairs, to apply his initiative and energy in any field of endeavor and to reap the rewards of his efforts." He reminds us of our three-year-old daughter's frequent assertion, which we cannot admit, that "everybody (meaning herself) runs his own show."

If you read the rest of this article you will see why we ignore Mr. Zeller's qualifying phrase, "within the limits" etc.

Mr. Zeller makes no "defence whatsoever of unjustifiable privilege or of economic abuse," nor does he say that "the system of private enterprise is a perfect system," but he does say that "it is a system which works, it works better than it used to, and we can make it work even better still." Was it working "better than it used to" during the depression? "Under freedom of enterprise every generation has found itself better off than its predecessor." Or should we say "under the advance of modern science"? And should we leave out the generations that have run into great depressions lasting four or five years or longer?

"Individual freedom and economic domination do not mix. A nation cannot have both, and it must make its choice as England did in 1648 or as France did in 1789." Why is it that revolutions that took place long ago become so respectable that those who fear revolutions now identify themselves with those one-time revolutionaries? We have no doubt that Mr. Zeller would have been with the roundheads, for the quarrel with Charles I was primarily political, and not economic as he suggests, but would he have been with the French revolutionaries who demanded "liberty, equality and fraternity"?

"We can admire the Russian people for their constancy and courage in the defence of their native land, without admiring their politico-economic system." But we cannot admire their success without realizing that it was their "politico-economic system" which enabled them to make that defence. What amazing progress economically Russia has made in 20 years! Maybe she will some day add political freedom to her economic freedom.

Mr. Zeller goes on to pay tribute to Russia's "economic strength and productivity" and to attribute it to Stalin's departure from communism to reward the individual "on the basis of his productivity" and use of the "profit incentive." Would Mr. Zeller say that Russian industry is free from state control? Of course not, but he goes on into an argument which regards state control as incompatible with the profit incentive. "No government controls presided over the industrial revolution. No state controlled economy built the factories, laid the railroads, launched the ocean liners, invented and developed the electric light, the telephone, the automobile or the airplane. These things, and a thousand like them, came from men of vision working in complete liberty under the economic freedom of private enterprise. They were spurred on by the desire to better themselves and their fellow men. They were stimulated by the profit incentive."

As a matter of fact, the industrial revolution made government controls necessary. Laws had to be passed against women being used as horses in the depths of coal mines, against children being made into slaves. Gradually increasing government controls have been found necessary—workmen's compensation, unemployment insurance, limitation of hours and minimum wages for women, security frauds prevention, control of the rates and prices of public utilities, control (in Ontario) of milk prices.

Mr. Zeller might consider whether private enterprise or the Canadian people (through their governments), or both, built Canada's railroads (including the C.P.R.).

"No one blueprinted the British empire. It grew and prospered as the result of the complete economic freedom of brave and enterprising free men. No one planned the dominion of Canada. It grew from the untrammelled efforts of pioneers who assumed risks in developing a land which commanded their unbounded faith." (This quotation is the beginning of the paragraph previously quoted and ending with the statement: "They were stimulated by the profit incentive.")

Mr. Zeller couldn't say that governments had not been chiefly responsible for the acquisition and development of the territory that now constitutes the British empire, including Canada. So he changes his line of attack and says nobody planned the empire, nobody planned Canada. There has been little or no planning in the past, therefore there should be little planning in the future.

THERE ARE OTHER MOTIVES

Profit was not the only motive of the men who pioneered the British empire. The Pilgrim Fathers and other groups came to this continent, as we heard a clergyman say on Sunday morning, and put up with great hardships, so that they might have freedom of worship. The United Empire Loyalists came to Canada because of principles and loyalties. William Lyon Mackenzie and the Reformers didn't take the hard road for the sake of profit. If they had sought profit, they would have aligned themselves with the Family Compact.

Men have many motives besides profit. They want change, adventure, freedom of religion, freedom of speech, education, opportunity to develop and use their talents. People don't marry and bring up families for the sake of profit. Soldiers don't fight to get rich. Clergymen don't preach to enrich themselves. Doctors aren't doctors just for the sake of what they earn. Men don't go into public life for the money they get out of it. Most public men are poor, some die in poverty.

Returning to Mr. Zeller's objection to controls (not in war-time, but when peace returns), he quotes Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, as saying that "controls are wholly related to scarcities," and says that "none of these controls of themselves created one hour of work or one dollar of wages for a single Canadian worker." But some of the controls maintain the buying power of the dollar. A dollar that buys two pecks of potatoes is better than two dollars that buy a peck and a half.

And it is here that Mr. Zeller shows his failure to grasp the big hope of making private-ownership capitalism work. If he would read a present-day economist, or the Lever Bros. article to which we have referred, or the Chartered Banks advertisement which we have quoted, he would see that our choice in the future is between a controlled economy and a completely socialized economy. When this war is over, Mr. Towers, as governor of the Bank of Canada, will have the job of restricting or loosening credit, as conditions require. The Lever Bros. article advocates avoiding booms through monetary controls.

Mr. Zeller wants, when peace returns, "un-trammelled production to maintain abundance." Mr. Zeller says: "Once government starts down the long road of economic control it can neither stop nor turn back until it reaches the dead end of tyranny. . . . The people must choose between freedom and dictatorship. They cannot be half slaves and half free."

Government started "down the long road of economic control" long ago, not to destroy freedom but to preserve it, and those who say that they want no more controls than we had before this war are working for disaster and the revolutionary changes they hope to avoid.

It almost seems that Mr. Zeller, whose address has been widely publicized, thinks (though he doesn't say it) that if business were freed of all restrictions all would be well with everyone. He says "regulation to prevent abuses, yes, regimentation, no," and he specifically says that "private enterprise does not mean the same thing as laissez-faire," but he thinks that "natural laws" and "natural forces" will do the necessary regulating. An American economist, Sumner H. Slichter, defines "free enterprise" as a system under which governments pursue a "let alone" (laissez-faire) or "hands off" policy. Good old Adam Smith, he says, called it the "obvious and simple system of natural liberty."

"Make-work schemes, social insurance schemes and the rest are all very well in their way, and if carefully planned they can contribute something worth-while to the general welfare. But they do not get at the root of the problem. The real need, in the years to come, will be to ensure that private enterprise will be afforded the conditions that will enable it to produce in abundance." The big obstacles in the way of private enterprise, Mr. Zeller thinks, may be "undue government controls and excessive and discriminatory taxation—controls which throttle ambition and initiative, and taxation which prevents the accumulation of capital or discourages its active use. Opportunity for venture capital is an absolute essential for maximum production, which is in itself the only road leading to the elimination of poverty." "The question is not does free enterprise want an economy of abundance, but will it be given the opportunity to achieve one," Mr. Zeller says in an earlier passage. "In the last years of so-called peace after the last war, free enterprise was denied that opportunity in full measure. The policies of 'economic nationalism' pursued by governments throughout the world clogged and hampered international trade into the depression. The question is, will governments do better this time?"

And so we have a Canadian business man blaming our governments for the protective tariffs which, we agree, contributed to the depression (and to this war). Canadian business demanded the tariffs, contributed to party funds to secure the tariffs, and would protest if they were removed or radically lowered. The question is, will business men do better this time, and our own impression is that they will, that Mr. Zeller does not speak for Canadian business, that Canadian business men are prepared to accept and make a success of a controlled economy, within a more orderly and brotherly world—a national economy in which "venture capital" will be provided not out of the fortunes of the few but out of the savings of the many.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

FREE ENTERPRISE

(Brampton Conservator)

"No government controls presided over the industrial revolution. No state-controlled economy built the factories, laid the railroads, launched the ocean liners, invented and developed the electric light, the telephone, the automobile or the airplane. Under private enterprise has been built here one of the highest living standards in the world. It still rises."

Here, in 54 words, is the case for free enterprise, as stated by Mr. Walter P. Zeller, of Montreal, to members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association. The words should be read by every citizen—particularly by every citizen who is being deluded by the opium dreams of socialists.

Without free economy Canada could never have come of age as a nation. Trammelled by bureaucracy, deprived of the driving incentive of profit, would our forefathers have blazed new trails through the wilderness and pushed back the forests and founded the cities and tunnelled the mountains and cultivated the plains?

Would they have launched forth on the adventures in production which have made Canada a manufacturing power and given Canada's people possessions undreamed of even a generation ago?

Yet today we have demagogues and bogus idealists crying out against free enterprise and preaching that we should become a race of timid men—men not spurred to greater effort by hope of reward for work, initiative and talent, but content to be coddled by the state from birth to death. They ask us also to sacrifice our political freedom; for there can be no political freedom without economic freedom.

They spout catch-phrases and irresponsible promises and they try to destroy the system under which, as Mr. Zeller puts it, "every generation has found itself better off than its predecessor, not only in terms of the money in its pockets, but above all in terms of that ever-increasing variety of goods and services that add to the comfort, dignity and ease of life."

The demagogues have raved and ranted too long without being answered. And it is refreshing and revealing when a man like Walter Zeller takes the cudgel of truth to their propaganda.

PREMIER DREW IN ACTION

(Bowmanville Canadian Statesman)

Within the space of days since assuming the premiership, Hon. George Drew has got down to business. He has a long way to go, and a hard way too, in implementing the progressive platform that brought him to power. His course will be watched very closely by his supporters and much more closely by both the official opposition and his hard-shelled Liberal opponents. If he does not measure up, then he will have to go, and he is perfectly aware of that fact. We should draw attention at once to what he has already done. Here is part of it:

He has formed a new cabinet of ten, not 14 members, which to those fairly familiar with the personnel seems well and wisely chosen. Their abilities and their shortcomings will be noted as time passes. Since the first cabinet session, the new government has removed millions of acres of timber lands from control of absentee and apparently inept concessionaires of the previous administration. The C.C.F. ought to applaud that move.

Then the ex-Liberal minister, St. Clair Gordon, chairman of the liquor control board, has been retained in that job. That deflates the "spoils system." And there was quick action in calling a farm conference to establish more efficient methods of farming and marketing. That was one of the prime pre-election promises. Finally, the new provincial treasurer, Hon. Mr. Frost, has effected a refunding operation which saves the province $1,000 a day in interest charges. That is the first answer to scoffers who whined, "Where is the money coming from?"

To those who complained about political promises, spurious and otherwise, about inexperience and other things, we believe Hon. George Drew is beginning to give prompt and emphatic answers. Before the new session commences early in 1944, we believe he will extend, enforce, and underscore more of those answers. It is not at all improbable that he will continue to display a forcefulness and a line of action that will have earned the respect and support of Mr. Nixon's following. He may even win the qualified respect and reluctant support of His Majesty's loyal opposition, the C.C.F., in some of his measures. But he need have no fear of any outcome so long as he earns and wins the respect of the whole people of the province of Ontario.

REDUCING TIME LOSS

(The Ottawa Citizen)

Since the outbreak of the war a number of changes have been made in the labor department's conciliation machinery with a view to bringing about quicker settlements of industrial disputes. A study of statistical information published by the department makes it evident that these changes have resulted in a very considerable reduction in the loss of manpower through strikes.

In 1942, the third year of the war, the number of wage earners in Canada reached the highest peak in all our history. There were about 60 percent more wage earners in 1942 than there were in 1917, the third year of the last war. This higher number of workers no doubt accounts, in part at least, for the fact that in 1942 there were 113,916 workers involved in strikes as against only 50,255 workers in 1917.

However, in measuring the effects of strikes upon production the important thing is not so much the number of men involved as the number of man-days of labor lost to the nation's productive effort. In 1942 there were more than twice as many men on strike as in 1917. But the actual man-days lost was considerably less than one-half—the man-days lost in 1917 being 1,123,515 as against 450,202 man-days in 1942.

From these figures it is seen that in 1917 the average time each man remained out on strike was 22 days, whereas in 1942 the average for each man amounted to slightly less than four days.

While it is not possible accurately to determine all the factors leading up to this very great reduction in manpower lost there can be no doubt that much of it has been due to the improved machinery set up in recent years by the labor department for the speedier handling of industrial disputes.

POST-WAR DEPRESSION UNNECESSARY

(Barrie Examiner)

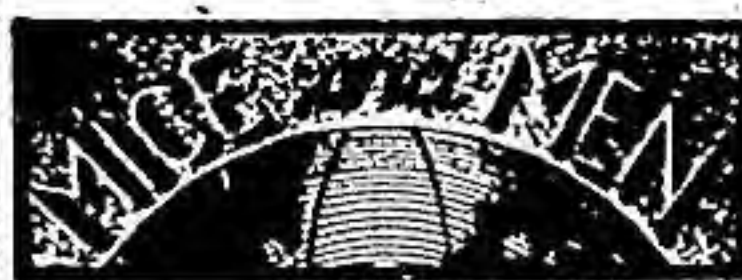

Will a depression follow this war? In a great many people's minds, it will, and much post-war planning for social security is built upon this premise. Frankly we do not think that a depression is necessary. We are convinced that if Canada's manufacturers will think first in terms of the country's needs, rather than profits, depressions can be avoided.

By this we do not suggest that the profit motive is wrong. Indeed, it is the motive that encourages and builds a nation's industrial output. We believe, too, that labor has a part to play in post-war prosperity. Every day's work lost by strikes helps bring about depressions, for the simple reason that wages make production, and production in turn makes wages. It is the circulation of wealth, rather than the amount of wealth that determines prosperity or the lack of it.

We base our belief in post-war prosperity on present conditions. To a very large extent domestic production has ceased, except where it is essential to the national war effort. For some years now there have been no radios, cars, refrigerators and other major manufactures produced for domestic consumption. When the war is over this production will have to be brought to meet the demands created by the greatest savings in the country's history.

In addition, the gold mines, the forests, construction and repair of highways and railways have been largely neglected, and these will provide work for thousands when the active service men return. Thousands of married women will want to return to their homes from war industry, and thus make way for men, and thousands more men will want to return to the farms from which they came.

All this suggests a boom rather than a depression, and if care is exercised by industry, labor and the government, Canada should experience a period of unprecedented prosperity and employment.

Reports from London indicate that new British forces have landed on the Norwegian island of Spitzbergen following the German hit-and-run raid on the island on Sept. 8. British troops now have control of the island.

German troops have abandoned the key rail city of Bryansk after a strong Russian offensive.

German parachutists have taken over the policing of St. Peter's square in the Vatican City, solely a religious centre, and are virtually holding Pope Pius XII a prisoner. All cardinals who had before lived outside the Holy See are now taking up residence inside the Vatican City awaiting further developments.

German forces are showing stiff resistance to the Allied invaders at Salerno. The German army defending Naples has won back some ground from the Allies. In the south the Allied forces meet little or no resistance.

Since steel is now unavailable, paper stickers will be used on Ontario cars in 1944.

Total Canadian casualties in Sicily amount to 2,387, of which there were 476 killed.

Tells How To Multiply Favorite Perennials

(By Rudy Renzlus, Newmarket Horticultural Society)

Just as early spring is the ideal time to divide the later-blooming perennials, so is this the time to divide the early flowering perennials. Some that have been in place for two or three years will profit by the division and be able to maintain quality and quantity of bloom. Plants with rampant root systems forming mats or strong growers will benefit greatly. Others like platycodon prefer to be left undisturbed.

Lift the whole clump carefully out of the soil, shake it gently to remove surplus soil. If the clump is then held in both hands and bent outwards the divisions to be made will readily be seen. Use a sharp knife to make a clean cut through crown and roots, leaving two or three new buds or tiny shoots for each division. If too many are left,

JEWELLER AND OPTOMETRIST

ABEL T. CUYLER ONCE LIVED IN NEWMARKET

The funeral of the late Abel Thompson Cuyler took place at Medicine Hat on Monday, August 30, the Rev. H. M. Horricks, B.A., officiating.

The pallbearers were Roy Woolven, Thomas Graham, W. W. Oliver, Robert Worth, A. S. McNaughton and Morton Fulton, while the honorary pallbearers were Theodore Gershaw, L. C. Cook, A. A. Callbeck, B. F. Souch and W. J. Dilworth, all old friends of the deceased, and Colby Reesor, son of an old neighbor, the late W. D. Reesor, of Ontario days.

Interment took place in the Hillside cemetery, beside his wife, Sarah Catherine Cuyler, who predeceased him in 1932. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Isabella Johnston of Morden, Manitoba, and Mrs. W. T. Gibbons, Toronto, by one daughter, Mrs. Robert Montgomery, Toronto; two sons, T. W. (Ted) of Calgary, and J. T. in Medicine Hat, and 13 grandchildren, one of whom, Sgt. Bruce Montgomery, is serving in Sicily.

Mr. Cuyler was born in East Gwillimbury township, on Sept. 20, 1857. He farmed some years on the paternal homestead and then moved to the township of Markham, where he and the late W. D. Reesor were neighbors.

At a later date he was general merchant at Bethesda, and after that he lived for a time at Newmarket. In 1913 he moved to Medicine Hat, where he was a partner in the Southern Alberta Business College, and later the local agent of the Massey-Harris Implement Co. In his later years he enjoyed spending his Fridays at the Medicine Hat market chatting with farm friends of his business days.

Since his wife died in 1932, he lived alone for some time, then with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cuyler, in Medicine Hat, and for the last year with his son, T. W. Cuyler, in Calgary.

During the past six months he began to fail quite rapidly and his death took place Friday, Aug. 27. On Sept. 21 he would have been eighty-six.

His son, Arthur, predeceased him in 1935.

DOROTHY WATSON IS FALL BRIDE

The bride was charming in petal pink wool crepe with navy accessories and corsage of gladioli. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Alfred J. King, gowned in black velvet with white accessories and corsage of gladioli. The groomsmen was Mr. Alfred J. King, Toronto.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister for immediate families.

Later the happy couple left for a short trip to western Ontario following which the groom will return to Nova Scotia.

Gathering the Sport Facts

No-hit, no-run games seem to be plentiful in the International League this season. Last Monday afternoon we had the pleasure of watching Tom Annaniz of the Toronto Maple Leafs hurl one against the Buffalo Bisons. This was the second one we had watched. Back in 1936 we remember watching Leroy Herrmann hurl a ten-inning 1-0 shut-out. Annaniz's seven-inning shut-out was the second of his career and the fourth hurled in the International League this year.

Just the day before Walt Dubiel, young right-hander with the Newark Bears, had hurled one against the Syracuse Chiefs and shut them out 3-0. Neither one of the youngsters pitched a perfect game, because in each case, runners managed to reach first base on walks. Rufe Gentry of Buffalo pitched a ten-inning no-hitter against the Newark Bears early in April. A remarkable feat against the tough Newark club. Several weeks ago "Blix" Donnelly of Rochester tossed a no-hitter of nine innings duration against the last-place Jersey City Little Giants.

Only one perfect game has been pitched in the International League since its inception in 1881. This was turned in by old-timer Chester Carmichael of Buffalo in 1910. Not a man reached first base during Carmichael's tenure on the mound.

Donnelly nearly pitched a perfect game in his try, only one man reached first base in the game. He managed to reach first on a wild throw error to Red Schoendienst. There have been 50 no-hit games pitched in the International League. Toronto has been fortunate in having a chance to watch more than any other city. Nine have been pitched in the Queen City.

Pitching a no-hit game is about 80 percent luck and 20 percent ability, according to both Donnelly and Annaniz. Donnelly ought to know something about it, because he has pitched three of them during his career. The luck, according to Donnelly, is in having the batters hit the ball where the fielders can handle them.

In order to prove his point he recalls that in one of the no-hitters he pitched a pitcher was filling in for an outfielder during the game. The pitcher caught a hard line drive while playing out of position for the particular player at bat. If the regular outfielder had been playing that day the ball would have gone for at least a double. This is what Donnelly calls 80 percent luck.

Tom Annaniz in pitching his no-hitter for Toronto on Labor Day was backed up by sparkling fielding gems. Both Tyack and Grudzis made marvellous running catches in the outfield. Zak went fast to his right to scoop a hard drive from the bat of Eddie Kobesky of the Bisons. If it had been any runner but the slow moving Kobesky he couldn't have made the put-out. The official scorer would have to rule a hit on the play and Annaniz's no-hitter would have been ruined.

Perhaps there is something in what both pitchers say. No-hitters are 80 percent luck and 20 percent ability. Certainly luck rode with Annaniz on the holiday.

Of People And Things

THE PROBLEM MOTHER

By Isabel Inglis Colville

We have heard of all kinds of problems, from bridge and high finances, from political and war strategy to problem children, but I do not think I ever heard of a problem mother. Well, if we do not call the mother I have in mind a problem one, then I leave its naming to some more gifted than I, in non-enclosure.

This mother is small and grey, with determined light green eyes, a dignified manner and a large fluffy and very expressive tail.

I have written of her abject surrender to her son, Candy's youthful beauty and grace, which, of course, showed her good taste, but poor judgment in allowing his tyranny, but which was, of course, her own affair.

Now, all is changed. She has presented Candy with a brother—a tiny and most perfect replica of Candy—every stripe, every point all so exact as to be funny.

But that isn't what is worrying us—what DOES "give us to think," as our French allies say, is that she can't concentrate as she should on the newcomer, because of the charms of her older son.

If he wishes to go out and taste the air, she dashes madly after him, often coming into a head on collision with the door or any member of the family who happened to be in her way.

Behind her, in its warm basket, the infant Patsy treats us to infantile walls and squeals which subside into sobs, as he realizes their futility.

Meanwhile, outside Woolly and Candy play leap frog, climb trees, explore the orchard and generally behave like two irresponsible imps, who haven't a care in the world.

Then, after what we consider an unduly long interval, Woolly walks in, calls Candy, sees that he is settled in a comfortable chair, or in the middle of the floor where everyone has to walk over or around him, gives us a scornful glance, as much as to say "mind your own business," and gets into the basket with the baby, whose shrieks fill the air—his eyes aren't opened—until maternal growls and coos reduce him to quiet.

The other evening the man of the house said to me "let's dig some of those early potatoes," so armed with pails and bags, and implements—I say implements because I use a hoe, to the amazement of real diggers—we sallied forth with Woolly and Candy tagging along behind.

For awhile, all went well; the potatoes rolled out nicely, the evening was beautiful, with a young moon showing and a light of many hints, like the glimmer of an ethereal rainbow playing round us.

The only note in the beam was Candy who always flew right in front of me as my hoe was coming down, thus causing a perpetual palpitation of the heart.

Suddenly I heard Woolly's voice, raised in hoarse protest, while Candy crouched behind an ineffectual weed.

The cause—our neighbor's dog, which the cats know perfectly well, and have no fear of. But Woolly took it into her crazy head that he meant to harm her jewel—namely Candy, and advanced to battle, with dilated eyes, tail like a plume and every hair standing on end. The dog looked at me, wagged his tail and tried to avoid Woolly's eyes.

Meantime, Candy, seeing the warring pair, made for it and began to play with it: when he turned to look, Woolly, thinking he was going to attack her darling, launched herself into the air to the attack, and for a few minutes, an animated mass of fur, from whence issued assorted howls and growls, was all we saw and heard.

By this time, my better half and I joined the fray, and with Candy doing his famous ballet round us, we poked into the furry mass till Woolly was separated from her foe, breathing slaughter and vengeance, and poor Tip crept close to Archie with a piteous look as much as to say, "what did I do?"

For the rest of the evening Woolly paraded the potato patch, growling and hissing, while behind her trailed Candy, trying to evade her eagle eye, and irritate Tip. I breathed a sigh of relief as we all went toward the house, where Patsy was making the night vocal with his infant squeals, and where Candy would eat his supper and go to bed.

I heard a woman say once, that all boys from fourteen to eighteen should be eliminated from society for those years so likewise, I think all cats from three months to six should be incarcerated also—do you agree?

FOREIGNERS ONLY

Shortly before the French forbade the departure of volunteers for Spain, a train was about to leave the Austerlitz station in Paris for the Pyrenean frontier. The third-class carriages were crammed with excited volunteers, and in the first were numerous young men off to join Franco's army. Standing aloof on the platform was a dark complexioned youth with black side whiskers, surveying the scene.

"Interesting sight, isn't it?" a bystander remarked to him. "And you—aren't you going along with them?"

"Oh, no," was the reply. "I'm a Spaniard."

In Memoriam

Flintoff—In loving memory of my dear sister, Marjorie (Evans) Flintoff, who passed away Sept. 21, 1942.

Dear sister you are not forgotten, Though on earth you are no more, Still in memory you are with us As you always were before.

Lovingly remembered by Dorothy Monkman and family.

Johnston—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Fred E. Johnston, who passed away Sept. 22nd, 1941.

Two years have passed and gone Since one we loved so well, Was taken from our home on earth With Jesus Christ to dwell.

Happy years, but only few Was I destined to spend with you. God took you home and left me here.

In memory's dreams you still are near. Nothing but memories as we journey on. Longing for a smile from a loved one gone.

No one knows the depths of our deep regret But we remember when others forget.

Ever remembered by his wife Lillian and his son Elmer.

Seby—In loving memory of a dear father, Wellington B. Seby, who passed away Sept. 20, 1940.

The flowing stream of life rolls on, But still the vacant chair Reminds the love, the voice, the smile.

Of him who once sat there. His life was one long sacrifice, His heart was true and tender. He toiled so hard for those he loved, Then left us to remember.

Lovingly remembered by his children, Leonard, Dora and Albert.

FIERCELLER HAS JOB UP BOWSER'S ALLEY

"Many thanks for cigarettes, I can think of no more appropriate time to smoke a cigarette from such a patriotic organization and town than now, when we are celebrating Mussolini's downfall and hoping for the capitulation of Italy," writes Sign. Sid. Fierceller from overseas.

Continuing his letter of thanks to the Newmarket fire brigade, he tells Secretary Frank Bowser: "I am working on a job which would be right up your alley. We draw the rations and make the various allotments to the unit's cook-houses. We handle large quantities of groceries, vegetables and meat. Splits must be made to the finest fraction or we will have quartermasters and cooks jumping down our throats."

"Just a short note to express thanks to the Newmarket fire brigade for the 300 cigarettes," writes Capt. Jack Patterson. "Believe me they are really appreciated over here. A Canadian cigarette is priceless in comparison with these 'tinny' gaspers we get in England. "Was really surprised recently to meet Pte. Don Stewart in the Dominion Officers' club in London. He comes from Mount Albert but went to high school in Newmarket. Have been corresponding with Ivan Atkins but haven't been able to get leave at the same time and meet him."

Pte. Stan Koeth, also thanking the fire brigade, supposes that most of the boys of his age have gone from Newmarket and that he would not find many familiar faces. "Having the camp in Newmarket must have changed things. I guess I will see some changes, because it is now close to four years that I have been away. Percy Myers is in the same outfit with me. He is a sergeant."

Lieut. R. L. Chantler finds it a tremendous encouragement to know that overseas businessmen have time to think of those overseas and to send them welcome cigarettes.

"I have received numerous parcels from the Boy Scouts and the Veterans' Association," writes Sgt. Stanley Bone. "If you will kindly pass on to them my thanks I would appreciate it. This is just in case they have gone astray. And please thank the boys of the fire brigade for remembering me so kindly with these 200 cigarettes."

Gnr. John Lister tells Mr. Bowser, after expressing his gratitude, that with the local paper "I follow most of the doings at your council meetings. I have been interested in the things under discussion and note that meetings are as lively as ever. Good luck."

LIVE IN WHITCHURCH

WHITCHURCH WHITCHURCH GENERAL RATE IS SET AT 6.3

Claiming to have killed three dogs during March, May and July found killing sheep in Whitchurch township, a ratepayer made application for the bounty of $5 per dog, or $15, only to have the claim disallowed by the township council in session at Vandort on Saturday.

Councillors stated that, while the council has a reward posted of $5 per dog, it can be paid only after some member of the council or a sheep valuator has been called to view the dead dog or dogs. This condition was not complied with.

The council set the general tax rate at 6.3 mills, half a mill higher than last year. The county rate is down half a mill, and the general education rate is up slightly from 3.2 to 3.4 mills.

The council appointed a committee consisting of the reeve and the deputy-reeve to ask the aid of the attorney-general in getting rid of slot-machines in the township.

The deputation will also discuss with the attorney-general the status of the Newmarket police court.

Reeve George Leary presided and Councillor Ed. Logan introduced the matter of maintenance of the south town-line. He thought the issue should be faced at this time, and after some discussion moved that Markham council continue to administer the account for 1944.

Reeve Leary said he didn't care who administered the work if the road is only maintained more satisfactorily.

Deputy-Reeve Lorne Evans said that it was his opinion that the road had been neglected, but he would like to see Markham continue to handle it, with an intention that perhaps more work be done to keep the boundary line in a good state of repair.

Councillors Eugene Baker and Leslie Harper favored Markham's continuance of the administration, since Whitchurch handled it for 12 years continuously.

Tax Collector Ross Ratelle asked the council to consider an increase in his pay. He suggested an advance from $275 to $300. "I don't think that would be too much," said Councillor Logan. Councillor Harper agreed, and they moved a resolution which carried.

Deputy-Reeve Evans suggested before the resolution came to a vote that a $50 increase might be all right, and Councillor Baker concurred, but they did not oppose the motion. The tax collector told the council he handled over $40,000 per annum.

The council adjourned at five o'clock to view some roads pending repairs.

our commanding officer gave us a real enjoyable time last evening. Once again, thanks."

In his letter of appreciation Pte. Percy Desvitt mentions enjoyable times at Glasgow and Edinburgh and with cousins in Poole, on the south coast of England.

Cpl. C. H. Wright was out of smokes entirely and was thinking of gathering a few dry leaves in order to manufacture a substitute. LAC Bruce Love, another of the many service men who have written appreciative letters to the Newmarket fire brigade, keeps up with the news of the good old town through reading The Era and Express, which he receives quite regularly.

Pte. L. Coupland reports as follows: "They are sure putting it to us. Our carriers are never idle." "There are three of us from Newmarket in one squadron," writes Sign. E. H. Barber, and it sure puts it up to know that Newmarket folks are thinking of us and doing everything they can to make our stay over here better."

Others who have sent the firemen letters or cards to convey their thanks for parcels of 300 cigarettes are LAC Alfred Ainsworth, Pte. Joe Darrach, Pte. Wm. A. Watt, Spr. Wallace Morton, Pte. Brendan Callaghan, Sgt. Ted Robinson, Spr. J. T. Galbraith, Tpr. C. W. Hoover, Tpr. D. E. White, Tpr. Jas. R. White, Pte. Vernon Clark, Gnr. J. H. Hisey, L-Cpl. C. A. Shropshire, Pte. T. A. Drury, Spr. E. Thompson, Pte. Jack Williams, Sgt. Alfred Elphinstone, Spr. W. D. Lyall.

Also included among the many letters to express their gratitude are Cpl. Earl Wrightman, L-Cpl.

West Wants Industry, Visiting Clergyman Says

One of western Canada's best known Anglican ministers, Rev. Canon A. E. Greenhalgh of St. George's church, Saskatoon, took Sunday morning's service at Trinity church.

Canon Greenhalgh came to Canada as a student from England in 1907 and since his ordination has been stationed in the west continuously. This year's crop in Saskatchewan he describes as "not average," but believes it will work out advantageously for the farmers.

"Most of the granaries are still full of wheat from other years," he told The Era and Express. "It would have been difficult to store a bumper crop, and because of the labor shortage more difficult to harvest it. Divine providence generally finds a solution for most things."

"There is a great feeling of strength and optimism in the west and there is quite a bit of money in circulation. Unfortunately we have few war industries or industries of any kind. It seems ridiculous to bring wheat elsewhere to be used for industrial alcohol or synthetic rubber when it could just as easily be processed in the west. That is a grievance we have in the west about a good many things."

"Many western communities too are being denuded of population because of the wages paid in eastern and west coast war plants. It will cause some readjustment problems after the war."

The west is proud of its fine record of enlistments, Canon Greenhalgh said.

The work of the church is being carried on in all parts of the west by doubling up the work among the clergy. There was a shortage this year among the young men, but there was a great response by the people. Proposals by the Anglican synod to increase stipends for western ministers would, he felt, do much to better their conditions.

West Wants Industry, Visiting Clergyman Says

One of western Canada's best known Anglican ministers, Rev. Canon A. E. Greenhalgh of St. George's church, Saskatoon, took Sunday morning's service at Trinity church.

Canon Greenhalgh came to Canada as a student from England in 1907 and since his ordination has been stationed in the west continuously. This year's crop in Saskatchewan he describes as "not average," but believes it will work out advantageously for the farmers.

"Most of the granaries are still full of wheat from other years," he told The Era and Express. "It would have been difficult to store a bumper crop, and because of the labor shortage more difficult to harvest it. Divine providence generally finds a solution for most things."

"There is a great feeling of strength and optimism in the west and there is quite a bit of money in circulation. Unfortunately we have few war industries or industries of any kind. It seems ridiculous to bring wheat elsewhere to be used for industrial alcohol or synthetic rubber when it could just as easily be processed in the west. DOWN THE CENTRE

Don Hamilton, smooth puck-stopper of Aurora juniors two years ago, was in town recently wearing the king's uniform. Don is with an infantry unit in eastern Canada and looked the picture of health. He sent greetings to his many friends. While hardly as good as Ross Waddell or Frankie Carr, the tanky Hamilton had plenty of polish on that battered Aurora team which seemed to be headed for a janitor's title until Mervyn Houghton was injured and Ronnie Rowe and his Markham buddies bumped them off in a third game after being down five goals. It was the most spectacular recovery we remember in junior hockey, even if it darned near broke our heart at the time.

Eric Bilbrough, Aurora's best boy who was a member of the same team, like most of his teammates will soon be on active service. In fact, he is hoped to be inducted into the service this week. Bilbrough had plenty of ability but that year was not able to keep up with the rest through inexperience. Hamilton, Myles MacInnis, Ross Turnbull, George Stark, Bruce Stephens, Del. Beaumont, Ken. Nash, Merv. Houghton, Houghton, Capra and Abrahams are all on active service.

Artie Consaul, who back in 1940 guarded the nets for Barrie juniors, was a member of the Essex Scottish football team overseas which lost out to the R.C.A. in a divisional championship clash. Consaul was easily the best goalie in junior B hockey that year.

Youth was served in a Sunday golf trophy tournament held recently at the Aurora golf club when a junior foursome of Alan "Whitney" Jones, Eric Bilbrough, Doug Clark and Pte. Gordon Boaks took honors from the best of the oldsters. Of course it was a handicap affair but there were some moments when the kids really looked as if they didn't need very much. A foursome headed by Dr. C. J. Devins and H. M. McKenzie were in second place while the favored foursome headed by club champion Billy Boaks could do no better than third.

The combined ages of the quartet of winners averaged around 18.4, if our memory serves us correctly. We should hate to start totalling the combined ages of the other competitors. Jones, who last winter looked to be the best junior hockey prospect we have seen in quite a while, carried a net 66, from a gross of 51, to set up the youngsters. Gordy Boaks, now on active service, in a few years time should be just as good as his dad.

Caddie troubles have been solved out on the west coast. We receive a Vancouver paper from a buddy and we note a bag-toting carriage has been invented by a B.C. golfer. It is an all-steel caddy car weighing about ten pounds with rubber wheels. The golf bag fits into a compartment which can be tilted to suit the taste, and springs back upright with a flick of the wrist. The contraption rides the roughest fairway, eats through sandtraps and, best of all, leaves no marks on the greens. In time we can see this machine putting the caddy where the automobile put old dobbin, namely on the honorably retired list. (Editor's note: Will it find a lost ball, Ab?)

Jimmy Hanson, just turned military age and last ranking racing star of the Aurora cycling club, is now on active service with the R.C.A.F. With the exception of Coach Jack Oxford, and secretary George Spence, both out of military requirements, the club has scored a grand slam. Hanson was the most promising young rider to come up through the club and was Ontario novice mile champ two years ago. We think he would have surpassed the records of Bob Ben-ville and Cliff Chapman, and ranked with the best in Canada. We know of no other organization in sport which can boast a better record for service than the now defunct Aurora Cycling club. When peace comes we hope Oxford will start all over again.

Speaking of cycling we note that Dave Mathewson, one of the club's faithful performers, is to be married come October to Miss Barbara Simpson of Aurora. Dave is a corporal with the armored corps at Borden and the Newmarket lad is rated tops as a wireless instructor.

"Ace" Yake, the old southpaw of softball, found time to drop us a few lines from across the pond. As late as Aug. 27 he was still in England with the Royal Regiment.

"Guess there is plenty of sport in Canada still but over here the sports seem dull to me. I hope we will be able to revive the glories of the past in North York after the war, but I doubt it. I saw Alf Cooper the other day. You remember when he was a member of Aurora junior hockey team and hardly anybody could skate with him. He looks good enough to play 60 minutes right now.

"Sonny" Jones, the good' pro boxer, who ranked with the best of the welters, is here with us. "Sonny", as you know, hails from Vancouver and is now too old to make a living at boxing, but he is a swell guy and as long as he can play African golf as well after the war as now he won't have to worry much. Would like to see Bill Mungford but so far have not been able to.

"Sonny" Kitchener, the kid who played goal for Kleinburg the year they put out that good Schomberg-King team, is here too. He was wounded at Dieppe but has completely recovered. He is 161 percent with all here."

Jimmy Lowe, former Aurora winger and a real prospect before enlisting, is still located in Victoria, B.C., with the R.C.A.F. and is a big factor in the present plans being made by the "pigeons" for an Allan cup sortie. James has been playing softball better than ever this year too.

Brampton camp captured the intermediate "A" T.B.A. baseball title this year, to climax a year of intense athletic activity. A little over a year old and not too big, the Brampton centre took group hockey honors and a baseball title. Their lacrosse team, after a good showing, was eliminated this week, after being picked to win.

MAY BE MAYOR SOME DAY

This young man's great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather were both mayors of Newmarket. He is Donald Doner Cane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Belfry Cane, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Cane and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Doner. Photo by Budd.

DADDY IS OVERSEAS

This little lass, who is taking things with a smile, is Genevieve Evelyn, 18-months-old daughter of L. Cpl. and Mrs. Wm. Connell, Queensville, and grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fairbairn, Queensville, and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Connell, South Wales, England. L. Cpl. Connell arrived overseas recently.

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Newmarket Era and Express: The month of August to date has been ideal harvest weather but not so good for governments holding elections and by-elections.

On July 4 I listened to a radio program, "Pleasant Memories," oldest consecutive Sunday broadcast in Canada. The announcer was playing records of American patriotic music, as it was Independence Day, and commenting on the imaginary line which separates our two countries.

Well, when our money is at a 10 percent discount and a farmer close enough to haul his barley across pays 16 cents per bushel duty and gets 96 cents for it, it's a little hard for his more unfortunate neighbors who are too far north of the border to take 50 cents and imagine democracy is working 100 percent.

Mr. Hsley and Mr. Gardiner were not too busy with the war effort to come out and take a hand in the Humbolt by-election. Of course, one can't expect Mr. Hsley, who is so busy looking after financing the war, to bother about a small item of 10 percent exchange.

Or Mr. Gardiner, a former school-teacher who used to be a smart politician, to be a successful federal minister of agriculture. The results of the efforts of these high-powered politicians must have been disappointing, to put it mildly, and in the Manitoba by-election at The Pas this week, a constituency represented by Mr. Bracken for the past 20 years, the C.C.F. candidate took the deposits of all coalition opponents. The results did not get front page space in the government press.

It might pay dividends to pay more attention to the health and education of our youth. Pay capable teachers sufficient to encourage them to stay teaching—not use it as a means of getting a few dollars and a stepping-stone to some other more lucrative profession. For the paltry $700 per year, which is all many of our teachers in rural schools get, what can you expect? Drill our youth or train them for some useful occupation and that it is no disgrace to work for a living.

This has been a tough month for the Axis and governments, but don't worry too much. "The old order changeth yielding place to new."

We will all pass along the trail some day—that is sure. If we go upwards we will have nothing to worry about. If we go the other way we will be so busy shaking hands with our friends and politicians, we won't have time to worry.

Yours truly,
J. L. Bogart.

DOCTORS AND NURSES HONOR EDITH LINTON

Miss Edith Linton, R.N., was honored by her fellow workers at a kitchen shower held in the nurses' residence, York County hospital, on Tuesday evening.

Miss Linton, who is to be a full bride, has been on the staff of York County hospital for the past two years and for the last year has been operating room supervisor.

Miss Hill, the superintendent, presented the bride-to-be with the many lovely gifts. A delightful lunch was served by the assistant superintendent, Miss B. Hamilton.

Miss Linton was completely taken by surprise Saturday morning when the doctors of the staff gathered at the hospital to express their best wishes and show their appreciation.

Dr. S. J. Boyd, on behalf of the staff, presented her with a beautiful occasional chair and end table. The doctors in turn voiced their appraisal of her fine work as a member of the staff.

Thousands and Thousands of Christmas GIFTS For OVERSEAS

Must Be Handled by the Mails

DEADLINE, NOVEMBER 1st

Christmas boxes will have a much longer distance to travel, entailing more handling and reshipment to reach many members of Canada's Fighting Services this year. To enable all the Dominion's men and women overseas to receive their gifts from home in time for Christmas Day, the post office department calls on the public to Mail Early for Christmas Overseas—not later than Nov. 1.

This year a gift from home is doubly precious, doubly needed. As the war progresses, the tempo of action is being speeded up, all over the world. Wherever he is, the sound of mail call is the one moment of the day to which he looks forward most eagerly, longingly, especially as Christmas approaches.

He needs your letters and he needs your gifts, and now is the time to select and mail them. Don't wait—for by shopping now you help ease the strain on shipping facilities, and give your soldier, your sailor, your airman that extra "lift" that helps him go on as nothing else can.

Think of it this way—all the blood plasma, all the sulfa drugs, all the ambulances in the world can't ease the pang of disappointment when the boys and girls in other lands don't hear from home for Christmas.

Isn't this enough to send you downtown today—to select his Christmas gift? Remember to consult your local merchants. They will be glad to advise you about suitable and acceptable articles and foods for mailing overseas.

A FEW SIMPLE RULES TO FOLLOW

Your post office will be glad to discuss with you making up a parcel for overseas. Matches, lighter fluid may not be sent. Jams, syrups and any other substance likely to leak and spread, if sent at all, must be enclosed in sealed containers (not glass bottles).

Address all mails in ink, fully, clearly and without misleading abbreviations. Be sure to place return address on cover—also include Prepay all mail correctly. Other helpful suggestions may be secured from Postmaster L. P. Cane.

onto on Saturday, Sept. 4, of Miss Reta Chapman to Orville Pat-hood days at Willow Beach. She was married in St. Patrick's breakfast at Orchard Park hotel, the happy couple left on a motor trip through Quebec province.

really manage quite nicely on less than we normally use."

Dainty refreshments were served

POLICE COURT MADE $25 TO $50 WEEKLY ON MACHINES

Concluding a preliminary inquiry held in York county police court here on Tuesday, into a charge of manslaughter against Clifford Reeves, 131A Prescott Road, Toronto, Magistrate W. N. Robinson sent the defendant on for trial at a higher court and set bail at $2,000.

With the consent of Crown Attorney N. L. Mathews, K.C., a charge of dangerous driving against Mr. Reeves was withdrawn.

According to Provincial Constable Howard Jackman, at about 10.30 p.m., on July 22, he was called to the scene of an accident on Yonge St., just south of Aurora, in which Pte. George Yoddell lost his life. When he arrived at the scene a short time after the accident had taken place, he found that the collision had occurred on a three-lane highway about 57 feet south of George See's driveway. He stated that he found Mr. See's car badly burned and facing east in a line with a badly broken hydro pole. Inside the car were the charred remains of a soldier.

Constable Jackman said that Mr. Reeves' car was on the west side of the road, also badly damaged. It was his opinion that a 111-foot tire mark, which was shaded light and dark, and made by the Reeves car, indicated either a "bouncing wheel" or faulty brakes.

Questioned by the crown as to the defendant's condition on the night of the accident, Constable Jackman stated that when he spoke to Mr. Reeves in the hospital two hours later, the latter had an odor of liquor about him but was "quite normal." He added that Mr. Gilmour, who was a passenger in the Reeves car, and who was severely injured, was under the influence.

George See, Toronto, driver of the car in which Pte. Yoddell was killed, told his witness that he had picked his passenger up at the side of the road near Thornhill, and at the time was slowing down to enter the driveway of his summer home near Aurora when the Reeves car crashed into the rear of his car.

"The first thing I heard was brakes, then a crash," Mr. See stated. "I was unconscious. I don't know how I got out of the car. I came to on the grass."

Asked by the crown if he had been hurt, the witness said that he was still suffering from his injuries.

Dr. C. J. Devins, Aurora, coroner, testified that on arriving at the scene he found the body of Pte. Yoddell in the See car, which was burning "furiously." As the soldier was beyond help he attended Mr. See, who had received neck injuries and was lying on the side of the road. The witness stated that the passengers in the Reeves car were being removed.

Questioned as to the extent of the injuries received by Mr. Gilmour, Dr. Devins said that the latter had been burned about the face and head and had received injuries to the larynx, which may prove permanent.

"Did you see the accused later?" asked the crown.

"Yes, I saw him later in the hospital," replied the witness. "He had an odor of liquor but I don't think he was under the influence. Mr. Gilmour smelled strongly of liquor. There was no doubt in the hospital that he was under the influence."

Sgt. P. C. Forth, Newmarket military camp, testified that he and two other soldiers had been waiting at the side of the highway directly opposite the golf course when the See car passed. He did not see the other car.

"I saw Mr. See's car pass, heard a crash and then saw a flame," he stated. "We went back to the accident. I saw one car facing south burning. I saw Mr. See crawling along the bushes. Two men were in the other car, which was facing north. The engine of this car was also on fire. We took the men out. Mr. Reeves was directly behind the driver's seat."

"We attempted to get the other man, Pte. Yoddell, out of the other car," continued the witness. "We couldn't tell whether it was a man or woman. We couldn't get him out."

Sgt. Forth said that they put out the fire in the Reeves car and had a passing army ambulance, which took the injured to the hospital.

Gordon Houtt, Aurora, mechanic, who tested the brakes of the Reeves car after the accident, told his witness that he was unable to ascertain whether the brakes were in good condition before the accident.

Five cases of "keeping a common gaming-house" were presented before Magistrate Robinson. In each case the slot machines found on the premises were ordered confiscated together with their contents. In every case, the defendants pleaded guilty through their counsel, Arloigh Armstrong.

A fine of $100 and costs or 60 days was imposed on Stanley DeJury, East Gwillimbury. According to Provincial Constable W. G. Tomlinson, Toronto, Mr. DeJury is the proprietor of the "Riverside Restaurant," which is adjacent to the Holland River, on Yonge St. The witness stated that on Aug. 20, he and two other officers entered the defendant's premises and played three gaming machines.

He said that on the 18th play on a "five-cent machine," a winning combination of cherries and lemons appeared on the revolving drums, when he pulled down the lever after inserting a five-cent piece in the slot. At the same time money and slugs were emitted from the machine, and he cashed the latter at the counter for money.

The officer went on to say that Constable C. VanZuben, who also played a "five-cent machine," cashed ten slugs for 60 cents. Sgt. T. Wilkenson, who played the 25-cent machine, cashed the slugs he received from the machine for $1.25.

"Was skill needed in the operation of the machine?" questioned the crown.

"No," replied the witness. "All you have to do is pull down the lever. It is all a game of chance."

On the stand Mr. DeJury told his witness that his business was seasonal and was now closed.

Questioned by the crown, he admitted that he obtained between $25 and $50 a week from the machines, which was but half of the money taken in by the machines, the other half going to Allan Selgal, owner of the machines.

Three Jackson's Point proprietors were fined $50 and costs or 30 days. They were: Stephen Sellers, proprietor of the "Edgewater" pavilion, Jeremiah Sedore, proprietor of a restaurant and store known as "Mie's Store," and Samuel Selgel, Toronto, proprietor of the "Red Spot Hamburger." In each case Constables Norman Reilly and Walter W. Bibbey, of the provincial police, on Sept. 4, played the machines and made the seizures.

In the case of Mr. Sellers, Constable Reilly told his witness that he received money and slugs from the machine and that when he cashed the slugs at the counter he was given 30 cents. When he mentioned the fact that money and slugs were emitted from the machine, Mr. Sellers said, "Yes, sometimes it does."

Testifying in the case of Mr. Sedore, Constable Bibbey told his witness that for the 16 slugs which were emitted from the machine he received ninety cents.

"How did you get ninety cents for 16 slugs?" asked the crown.

"You should have gotten 90 cents," "I believe Mr. Sedore made a mistake," replied the officer.

"That was Mr. Sedore's second mistake," commented Mr. Armstrong.

The fifth charge of "keeping a common gaming-house" was against Joseph Irving, whom Constable Reilly testified was the proprietor of the "Everglades" cabins and dance hall, Jackson's Point. The officer stated that he played 90 cents into the machine and obtained 12 slugs, which he cashed at the counter for sixty cents. He stated that when he and the other officer came back with search warrants two hours later the machine had been removed. Asked by his witness if the machine had been recovered, the officer said that it had not as yet been turned over. Magistrate Robinson adjourned the case for one week for sentence to allow time for the machine to be produced.

Pleading guilty to two charges, "false representation" and "selling produce under detention," John Wist, R.R. 2, Newmarket, was fined the minimum of ten dollars and costs on one charge and $20 and costs on the other charge.

According to Harry H. Ponton, of the Ontario department of agriculture, on Aug. 23 he examined 100 crates of lettuce which were being loaded into a C.N.R. car at Bradford from the truck owned by the defendant and found that the heads of lettuce on the top were in good condition, but that those below the surface averaged 33 percent "soft and spongy heads," whereas they were to be Class A. He said that he placed a detention tag on them and told the defendant that the load would have to be replaced. He said that although he explained to Mr. Wist that the load could not be removed or sold without departmental permission, Mr. Wist took the load to Toronto and sold it without it being replaced.

The representative of the department told his witness that there was an epidemic of "over-fueling" at the present time and that there were also more cases on his list to be tried.

Found guilty on a charge of having in his possession liquor other than that which was purchased on his own permit, Wilfred Dion, Aurora, was fined $100 and costs or three months in jail.

"There is a definite alteration made in the figures in the accused's permit book," stated Constable Robert Martindale, who visited the liquor store on Bloor St. W., Toronto, where the defendant stated that he had purchased two 28-ounce bottles of rum some time in the last part of August.

According to Constable Edgar Kidd, he came across the defendant at Wilcox Lake on the evening of Sept. 4, with the bottles of rum and a carton of beer, "at a place handy for people coming out of the dance hall to purchase."

The officer stated that tests of the alcohol made at the parliament buildings indicated that "some liquor had been added to the liquor."

On a second charge, of illegal possession of liquor, which was found in court last week, the defendant was fined $10 and costs.

In a charge of illegal possession against Leo Paxton, R.R. 1, Totterham, County Constable William Hill told his witness that on Aug. 13 he found a bottle of liquor in the defendant's car at Mossington Park, North Gwillimbury. He was fined $10 and costs.

In a charge of illegal possession against Henry Luck, Toronto, Pra-

A thank offering will be taken, as there is to be no supper this year owing to war conditions.

Provincial Constable Alex. Ferguson testified that he had been investigating an accident on Yonge St. in King township, on Aug. 31, when he observed the defendant, who was a passenger in one of the cars involved in the accident, and who had been drinking, go to the side of the road and pick up a partly filled bottle of wine. The officer stated that, when the accused saw the officer observing him, he dropped the bottle back into the grass.

He was fined $10 and costs.

Pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving in King township, Wm. H. McKiernan, Toronto, was fined $10 and costs or ten days.

According to Constable Ferguson, he had observed Mr. McKiernan driving in and out of traffic on Yonge St. near Eagle St. on Aug. 15. The officer stated that the defendant had turned out to pass a solid line of traffic.

Also pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving on Yonge St. in King township, Sidney Bishop, Toronto, was fined $20 and costs.

Constable Ferguson told his witness that on Aug. 31, while investigating an accident in which the defendant's truck had sideswiped another car, causing damage of about $100, he found that Mr. Bishop's truck had been over the centre line of the road.

In his defence Mr. Bishop stated that at the time of the accident he had been wiping the windshield of his truck and had gone over the white line.

Three fines, two of $15 and costs and one of $25 and costs, were imposed on Harold M. Flodder, Toronto, found guilty of three charges of speeding in North Gwillimbury. County Constable William Hill told his witness that he timed the defendant exceeding the speed limit on July 24, July 25 and Aug. 14.

Fines of twenty-five dollars and costs each were imposed on Sidney Hall, whom Constable Hill timed in North Gwillimbury, and Alvin C. A. Heide, whom County Constable Ronald Watt timed in East Gwillimbury. Both defendants are Toronto residents.
